Mysterious book

By S. KREMER

I received this book by mail in an anonymous envelope apparently sent from Sweeden. It has 21 numbered pages, and purports to be a translation of a Sweedish translation of Sir Arthur Conan Doyle's lost manuscript. The text is a disjoint composition of narrative, quotes, warnings, editorial remarks and personal notes. Some parts seem to be disordered. Many allusions to or quotes from Hofstadter, Doyle, Sartre, etc. are found in the book. Page 13, contains a rectangular hole where some words (3?) have been cut out of the book in a discussion of the meaning of life with reference to Adams. This seems like an elaborate viral marketing campaign, but for what I am not sure.

The book can be read in its entirety in seven minutes.... it has no relationship whatsoever with Sartre, except for being existential in an existential way.... the anonymous author said he'd meet me in September, but I've had no contact.... I expect we might meet in a parallel universe, perhaps drinking coffee and cognac in a little cafe on the bank of the Seine.
